Break the Bias!

The real stories are often untold, as the pages of history unfold. The lies, and heartbroken scenes, the pain and awful screams!

There are a hundred there are thousands, lying under the rug of meeting ends. They say I am weak and say this is how I should be. As long as I live, I should do as they please.

The second sex is my position nobody helps me fight this falsified conviction. Yes! I compromise, I leave everything aside. I am a woman, who is abused if I do not abide.

I refuse to live in disdain, with the spirit of motherhood, I will raise my head, with my willpower stronger than Snakewood. Because 'We live under the same sky' women are still underway, Oh why?

I cry for fairness, men, and women at par. Feminism is not biasness, not giving each other scar. Every gender is august, this critical thinking should prevail. Though broad-spectrum and humanity are still ill avail.

I talk to myself and say, "Oh Dear you are gracious and bold, hail to every human, kindness is your virtue." But then they take softness for weakness, be strong, remember no one has the right to hurt you.

I'll still break my silence and correct their sins, I am a creation of that holy kind, I'll keep walking until I win. 'Because we live under the same sky, gender equality should magnify.'

let us be the sun to every humankind, and not let the thoughts of inequality make us blind. After all, we are Humans, gentle and fine. Let's make the world a wonderful story where we call forth each other to shine.
